

SENATE NOW HUNTING FOR TARIFF LOBBIES

JUDICIARY SUB-COMMITTEE IS HOLDING OPEN HEARINGS—PART OF WILSON

TO GIVE INFORMATION

But Will Not Be Asked to Appear—Senator Ashurst First Witness Called to Stand.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, June 2.—Search for tariff lobbyists such as President Wilson has declared were operating in Washington, began today with the senatorial judiciary sub-committee holding open hearings. Before the investigation committee met Senators Overman and Reed went to the White House and conferred with President Wilson.

Both declined to talk of the visit, but it developed in response to inquiries that President Wilson would not be asked to appear and it was the general opinion that he would not. It was the president's intention to place his information in the hands of the two senators, Overman and Reed, and it was stated that the president would furnish a list of names of those whom he knew to be lobbyists against the tariff bill.

When the hearing opened some newspaper photographers ordered the committee members around in a business-like way while the picture was being taken. Senators Bacon and Ashurst moved aside, but care to get into such a picture," Senator Bacon said.

Senator Ashurst was the first called and testified that he was not interested directly or indirectly nor financially in the production, manufacture or sale of any article mentioned in the tariff bill or any other bill before congress, nor had he sought to influence any senator. The committee then made its first move to secure the list of so-called lobbyists or persons who have "talked with senators about the tariff bill. Senator Ashurst said he had not kept a list of those who had talked with him but was prepared to give the names of all he could remember.

The first was Mr. Keppner of California, who had asked him to find out whether there would be any further reduction in the tariff on lemons and oranges.

Then there was a Mr. McClure, representative of the sheep and cattle men, and a Mr. Tomlinson of the cattle men. Senator Ashurst said he called upon him and sought to show him that the sheep and cattle industry would be hurt by the bill.

"Nothing improper was talked to me by these men and what they did, every American citizen has a right to do, talk to their senators about their business affairs," he said, no one had improperly tried to influence his action.

Senator Ashurst said he believed, however, that a man named McMurry had been attempting to influence improperly the action of senators with reference to the proposed cancellation of contracts. He, McMurry, held with the production, manufacture or sale of whereby he would receive $3,500,000. "He is the smoothest lobbyist I have ever seen. Why he could carry a bundle of eggs upstairs and not drop a single one."

LAW SCORES VICTORY FOR CITY OWNERSHIP

Bill Passed by Legislature Allows Cities to Purchase Traction Companies at Any Time.

Madison, Wis., June 2.—By a law which became effective by publication Saturday, cities may purchase their street car systems at any time, subject to the procedure set by the state railroad commission. The three-year saving clause heretofore protected private companies against immediate municipal ownership.

This law in its making provided one of the most bitter legislative fights. The bill was introduced by Senator Victor Linley of Douglas county as a result of a situation at Superior in which the street car company, a Duluth corporation, had refused to yield to demands for extensions and other betterments which the citizens charged were needed. The old law requires that a company's franchise must be within three years of its expiration before a city could move to take over the property. This limitation is removed by the law just enacted.

Children in rural districts who are unable to attend high school when the term begins in September will be permitted to enter at any time and pursue regular high school work under a law effective Saturday. The bill, introduced by Assemblyman B. C. Meland of De Forest, provides special state aid of $500 for schools maintaining a special high school course beginning about the middle of November and continuing for four months. Reports at State Superintendent Cary's office show that many pupils are precluded from obtaining a high school education because they must stay on the farm for two months after the high school has started in the fall. Winter courses for winter school Governor McGovern has signed the Viebahn bill granting the same state aid to pupils of defective speech as to those who are normal. Pupils of both classes of students are required to take the same courses of study and state aid of $150 per year per pupil is to be expended for these unfortunate.

A new state policy is laid down in the bill permitting the state to pay the wages of convicts on convict labor to their dependents. This bill by assemblyman Sharp of Oconto has been officially published and is now law.

The governor has also signed Senator Cunningham's bill extending until June 1, 1915, the time in which the state will pay compensation for condemned tuberculosis cases. An appraisal as high as $70 may be awarded. Other bills now laws provide for a normal school at Eau Claire and for prohibiting physicians and surgeons from disclosing information received in their professional capacity.

It has been suggested here that this project might be developed in co-operation with Secretary of State Bryan's peace propaganda in which it is proposed that differences between any two nations shall be submitted by a commission, appointed by both sides, to investigate the controversy and make findings of facts without attempting to pass on the merits of the case. It is pointed out that besides Italy nine other nations have responded favorably to Secretary Bryan's plan.

The Almighty Dollar With a Hole In It.

We all like to think that our own dollar is sound and worth 100 cents. If some one tried to pass us a dollar with a hole in it or one plugged with lead, we make an emphatic protest. And yet some of us go along day by day, letting each of our dollars buy us an average of about 70c apiece.

All of which comes from the untidy American habit of careless spending or in other words, buying things in a hurry without thought and consideration.

In a new and bountiful country like ours it is a natural result of too much prosperity.

There is, however, a growing class of people who realize that it pays well to think as they buy. To all such we recommend the advertising pages of The Gazette which offer reliable information and suggestion to intending purchasers.

DECLARES DECISION IN EKERN CASE IS A STEP BACKWARD

Chief Justice Windlow of Supreme Court Filed Dissenting Opinion in Court Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Wis., June 2.—Characterizing the decision of the majority court in the Ekern-McGovern controversy as a step backward Chief Justice Windlow of the supreme court filed his dissenting opinion at the opening of the court today in which he said he fully agreed with Justice Banes. He said in part: "The most serious infirmity in the decision in this case is as I regard it not that it refuses to follow such sentiment but that it really is a step backward and a signal to retreat rather than to advance. He says that in presenting the case of a very important state office if an officer can convince the court that he was acting in good faith, he can practically deny the power of his superior officer to remove him and can remain in office. This ought to be the policy of a democracy today. Much less of a democracy can always provide in express terms for the removal without hearing and it will do no more and more as time goes on."

RULES THAT ARE NOT ALWAYS FOLLOWED UP

State Board of Health Has Issued Rules Which Must Be Followed—Time for Action.

Summer vacations of schools are the times when repairs are made. There are several schools in Janesville that will be subject to extensive repairs and alterations. The health and sanitation of the school children is one of the most essential features of school life. To insure this, the school building must be sanitary. That there may be no mistake as to what the state board of health has prescribed for sanitation and general health of the pupils, the rules and regulations are printed below:

Rules of the State Board of Health.

Rule 14.—The authority granted by Section 1409A-2 of the statutes, authorizing the state board of health to adopt and enforce rules pertaining to the prevention of inflammation of the eyes of school children, is hereby known as ophthalmia neonatorum, the state board of health hereby publishes and declares the following rule to be of general application throughout the state. This rule was officially adopted by the state board of health on January 25, 1913. The rules have all the force of law and must be enforced by health officers and school officials.

Rule 15.—Infantile Blindness. Any person, midwife, nurse or other person in attendance on a confinement case, shall, within two hours after the birth of the child, use one of the following prophylactic treatments for the prevention of infantile blindness or ophthalmia neonatorum.

2. Two drops of a 2 per cent solution of argyrol or two drops of a 5 per cent solution of protargol should be dropped in each eye in the same manner as when silver nitrate is used.

Rules Relating to the Sanitary Care of Schools.

Rule 16.—Under the authority granted by section 1408 of the statutes, authorizing the state board of health to adopt and enforce rules pertaining to the sanitary care of schoolhouses and the premises connected therewith, the state board of health hereby publishes and declares the following rules to be of general application throughout the state. These rules were officially adopted by the state board of health on January 25, 1913.

Rule 20.—Schoolhouses shall have in each class-room, at least fifteen square feet of floor space, and not less than two hundred cubic feet of air space per pupil and shall have an approved system of indirect heating and ventilation, by means of which each class-room shall be supplied with fresh air at the rate of not less than thirty cubic feet per minute for each pupil, and be maintained at an average temperature of 70 degrees Fahr. during the coldest weather.

Rule 21.—Local health officers having jurisdiction shall discontinue forthwith the use of any school building in which at least 200 cubic feet of air space is not supplied to each pupil. Pupils should be given gymnastic exercises during the time the windows are open in cold weather.

Rule 23.—When windows are the only means of ventilation, they should be so constructed as to admit of ready adjustment both at the top and bottom, and some device shall be provided to protect the pupils from currents of cold air. The top of the windows shall be as near the ceiling as the mechanical construction of the building will allow.

Rule 24.—It shall be unlawful for any school board, board of school directors, board of education or other school officials, in Wisconsin, to use a common heating stove for the purpose of heating any school room, unless each such stove shall be in part enclosed within a field or shield made of galvanized iron or other suitable material, and of such height and so placed as to protect all pupils while seated at their desks from direct rays of heat.

Rule 25.—Light shall be admitted from the left or from the left and rear of class-rooms. The glass area of windows shall equal at least one-fifth of the floor area of the school room and no pupil shall be farther from the principal source of light than twenty-five feet.

Rule 26.—All floors must be thoroughly swept, or cleaned by a vacuum cleaner each day, either after the closing of school or in the afternoon, or one hour before the opening of school in the morning. Before sweeping is started the floors must be sprinkled with water, moist sawdust, or other substance so as to prevent the raising of dust.

Rule 26.—All schoolhouses must be supplied with pure drinking water. If the drinking water is obtained from wells, satisfactory troughs and drains must be provided so as to carry away the waste water and prevent the creation of mud-holes near the opening of the well. When water is not supplied at the pump, from water faucets, or from sanitary flowing drinking fountains, covered tanks or covered cisterns, with free flowing faucets, must be supplied. All drinking fountains should be constructed of smooth glass or pressed metal.

Rule 27.—Water closets, dry closets and out-houses shall be kept clean and sanitary at all times. Water closets and dry closets, when provided, shall be efficient in every particular, and when said closets are not provided, out-houses for males shall be constructed of galvanized iron, or other impervious material, draining into a sewer vault or other suitable place. Out-houses for females shall be constructed of galvanized iron, or other impervious material, draining into a sewer vault or other suitable place.

NOTE.—In order to comply with the provisions of Rule 20, regarding heating and ventilation, the state board of health hereby makes the following recommendations with reference to the installation of heating and ventilating systems in new buildings or in buildings where a change must be made in the system.

1. The fuel for a fan system of ventilation shall have a horizontal area of not less than one square foot for each fifteen persons that the room will accommodate. The ventilation of school buildings by this system must be so designed that the air pressure in any class-room will be in excess of that of the outside air.

2. The introduction of cold air from the outside of the building at the base of a direct radiator, known as the "direct indirect" system of ventilation must not be used.

3. One or two room buildings, heated by hot air stoves, or furnaces, should have cold air drawn from a section of which is equal to 0.004 of the floor area of the room, or rooms heated. The vent flues should have a net area equal to that of the cold air intake.

Cummings, sustained a right ear nearly severed and sustained bad cuts and bruises on his head, neck, and right hand in a runaway near the corner of Wall and Washington Streets this morning, when the horse and even more serious consequences. Mr. Cummings, with William Burgess, was driving down Washington Street hill with a light wagon loaded with ladders when staging to be used in painting a house, when the horse became excited and of part of the staging, grazed the back of the horse which became excited, began to kick and plunge. It started to jump the curb on the right hand side of the road, when the driver's wagon struck it. Mr. Cummings was thrown out, and all the ladders and staging on top of him. The horse freed itself from most of the harness and swung round so far that Mr. Cummings was in danger of being run over, but Mr. Burgess was able to quiet the horse and remove the ladders that were heaped upon him. In response to the calls of Mr. Burgess for assistance, people in the neighborhood of the accident telephoned for physicians. Drs. T. W. Nuzum and William H. McGuire responded and after dressing the minor wounds took him to the hospital in an automobile where his ear was sewed up. Cummings was then removed to his home. He suffered no internal injuries and was unconscious for but a few moments.

ROCKFORD FESTIVAL OPENS ON TUESDAY

Elaborate Preparations Have Been Made for Celebration of Homecoming Week.

Rockford citizens have rallied to their great festival of June 3, 4, 5 and 6 and already thousands of dollars have been spent on a program, which will rival anything ever attempted in northern Illinois.

Motorcycles and automobiles to the number of several hundred will participate in the parades and or School Children's day, the 10,000 pupils of the city will take part in a most remarkable pageant.

The Paine Fireworks company will put on four of their best programs and their expert, who is now completing his plans for the Rockford event, is giving the high class night program that Rockford will offer.

"Jimmy" Ward, one of the most famous aeroplane experts of this country, will give a daily flight over the city. Ward, who has flown two years ago and thrilled crowds with his daring flights over the country of that vicinity.

The festival will have a Military day for a starter and the leaders of the state and the Boy Scouts from many towns will take part. Industrial day is one of the most important. School Children's day is expected to be one of the greatest events of the kind ever attempted in this part of the country.

Aside from the unusually big plan of the festival, the good time side has been overlooked and a bunch of the latest "boosters" in Illinois are preparing to give the visitors the time of their lives. It is a great homecoming and Rockford welcomes everyone. Society invites everybody and promises a good time to every man, woman and child who comes to the great festival. Remember the dates, June 3, 4, 5 and 6.

CORRECTION.

Through an error in the correction of proof in the "Booster Primer" of Saturday, a line omitted in one paragraph made no sense to it. The entire paragraph corrected is printed here.

There are many such towns in this country and their condition is due entirely to the fact that they are giving up the nourishment which they should retain to other towns and suffer in consequence. Whenever a consumer sends his money elsewhere instead of his home merchant he robs his town of so much nourishment. Whenever a consumer buys an out of town made article from his town merchant instead of a home made article, he but half robs his town. But when a merchant passes up a home factory to supply the consumer with outside goods he deals the deadliest blow of all against his own material interests as well as that of his townspeople.

SENATE NOW HUNTING FOR TARIFF LOBBIESJUDICIARY SUBCOMMITTEE IS HOLDING OPEN HEARINGS—
PART OF WILSON

TO GIVE INFORMATION

But Will Not Be Asked to Appear—
Senator Ashurst First Witness
Called to Stand.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, June 2.—Search for tariff lobbyists such as President Wilson has declared were operating in Washington, began today with the senatorial judiciary subcommittee holding open hearings. Before the investigation committee met Senators Overman and Reed went to the White House and conferred with President Wilson.

Both declined to talk of the visit,
but in developed in response to inquiries that President Wilson would not be asked to appear and it was the general opinion that he would not. It was the president's intention to place his information in the hands of the two senators, Overman and Reed, and it was stated that the president would furnish a list of names of those whom he knew to be lobbyists against the tariff.

When the hearing opened some newspaper photographers ordered the committee members around in a business-like way while the picture was being taken. Senators Bacon and Ashurst moved aside. "I don't care to get into such a picture," Senator Bacon said.

Senator Ashurst was the first called and testified that he was not interested directly or indirectly nor financially
in the production, manufacture or sale
of any article mentioned in the tariff bill or of any other bill before congress, nor had he sought to influence any senator. The committee then made an effort to secure the list of so-called lobbyists or persons who have given the senators about the tariff bill. Senator Ashurst said he had not kept a list of those who had talked with him but was prepared to give the names of all he could remember.

The first was Mr. Keppner of California, who had asked him to find out whether there would be any further reduction in the tariff on lemons and oranges.

Then there was a Mr. McClure, representative of the sheep and cattle men, and a Mr. Tomlinson of the cattle men. Senator Ashurst said he called upon him and sought to show him that the sheep and cattle industry would be hurt by the bill.

"Nothing improper was talked to me
by these men and what they did, I do, talk to their senators about their business affairs," he said. He said no one had improperly tried to influence his action.

Senator Ashurst said he believed,
however, that a man named McMurry
had been attempting to influence improperly the action of senators with reference to the proposed cancellation of contracts. McMurry, he said, had been offering a right to lands whereby he would receive $3,500,000.
"He is the smoothest lobbyist I have ever seen," he said. "He could carry a bundle of rails upstairs and not drop a single one."

KANSAS CITY STAR
EDITOR IS DISCHARGED

Jefferson City, Mo., June 2.—The Missouri supreme court today discharged Wm. H. Nelson, owner and editor of the Kansas City Star from contempt of the circuit court. The decision of the supreme court was unanimous. The supreme court held that the article published in the Star in contempt, had not been published by Nelson, but by a person who had been discharged from contempt solely on the ground that Judge Guthrie prepared his decision the night before the trial for contempt.

LAW SCORES VICTORY
FOR CITY OWNERSHIPBill Passed by Legislature Allows Cities to Purchase Traction Companies at Any Time.

Madison, Wis., June 2.—By a law
which became effective by publication Saturday, cities may purchase their street car systems at any time, subject to the procedure set by the state railroad commission. The law providing clause heretofore protected private companies against immediate municipal ownership.

This law in its making provided
one of the state's most bitterly contested legislative fights. The bill was introduced by Senator Victor Linley of Douglas county as a result of a situation at Superior in which the street car company, a Duluth corporation, had refused to yield to demands for extensions and other improvements which the citizens charged were needed. The old law required that a company's franchise must be able to be renewed in its expiration before a city could move to take over the property. This limitation is removed by the law just enacted.

Children in rural districts who are unable to attend high school when the term begins in September will be permitted to enter at any time and pursue regular high school work under a law effective Saturday. The bill, introduced by Assemblyman E. L.
C. Meland of De Forest, provides special state aid of $500 for schools
maintaining a special high school course beginning about the middle of November and continuing for four months. Reports at State Superintendent Cary's office show that many pupils are precluded from obtaining a high school education because they must stay on the farm for two months after the high school has started in the fall. The bill prescribes a similar winter course for winter students.
Governor McGovern has signed the bill granting the same state aid to pupils of defective speech as to those who are deaf and dumb. As both classes of students are required to take the same courses of study,
state aid of $150 per year per pupil
is to be expended for these unfortunates.

A new state policy is laid down in the bill permitting the state to pay the wages of convicts on convict labor to their dependents. This bill by Assemblyman Sharp of Oconto has been officially published and is now
law.

The governor has also signed Senator Cunningham's bill extending until June 1, 1915, the time in which the state will pay compensation for condemned tuberculosis patients. An appraisal as high as $70 may be awarded. Other bills now laws provide for a normal school at Eau Claire and from discharging physicians and surgeons
in their professional capacity.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis., June 2.—Some $2100

soon as a warrant is issued by secretary of state. Ekern's salary is $5000

uary in the insurance department to

PRESBYTERIAN HOST
MOVES ON TORONTOLarge Proportion of Delegates to General Assembly Have Arrived—
Will Elect a Moderator.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Toronto, Ont., June 2.—A large proportion of the several thousand delegates and visitors to the fortieth General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in Canada have already arrived in town. There is practically a full attendance of the ministerial cor-missioners, and the arrivals are expected to make up the complement.
The representation of elders is also large and includes many distinguished men prominent in former years in Western Canada, in particular, promises to be unusually well represented at the sessions this year.

With the meetings of several standing committees and conferences of the missionary and other bodies of the church today the assembly began to get under way, though the formal opening does not take place until Wednesday evening. The assembly will begin in Knox church, but will immediately adjourn to Massey Hall in order that accommodations may be provided for all the visitors. The first important business on the assembly program will be the selection of a moderator. The name most promi-nently mentioned in connection with the honor is that of the Rev. Murdoch Henderson, for many years foreign missionary to Honan, China. The General Assembly has not had a foreign missionary for moderator
since 1894.

WORLD STUDENT CONTEST
HELD AT MOHONK LAKE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Mohonk Lake, N. Y., June 2.—The conference of the World Students' Christian Federation, which met here today for an eight-day session, is the largest and most representative gathering of its kind ever held. The attendance far exceeds that at the meetings held in previous years in London,
Versailles, Tokio and Constantinople,
England, Germany, Russia, Sweden, Norway, Finland, China and Japan are among the countries represented by delegates. The new religious influences in China and Japan, the German theological attitude, and the French attitude since the passage of the separation act are among the subjects that will be considered by the conference.

NEW YORK RACING LAW
IS BEFORE HIGH COURT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Albany, N. Y., June 2.—The question of the constitutionality of the anti-gambling law prohibiting organized racing and holding directors of racing associations liable for such betting came up for argument before the Court of Appeals today. If the constitutionality of the law is upheld the plans now making for a revival of racing in that state
probably will be left abeyance.

INTERNATIONAL CITY
PROPOSED BY ARTISTNorwegian-American Sculptor Arouses Interest of Italian King in His Plans.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Rome, June 2.—Hendrik Christian Anderson, the Norwegian-American sculptor of Newport, R. I., presented to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy
during the private audience today the results of his nine years' labor for the establishment of a world center for international interests. The king displayed much interest in the scheme since one of the sites proposed for the new international city is suggested shall be capable of handling one million inhabitants in Tripoli, and America has also been mentioned in this connection.
It has been suggested here that this project might be developed in co-operation with Secretary of State Bryan's peace propaganda in which it is proposed that differences between any two nations shall be submitted by a commission appointed by both sides and make findings of fact without attempting to pass on the merits of the case. It is pointed out that besides Italy nine other nations have responded favorably to Secretary Bryan's plan.

gard to Differences.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

the coopers which has been in progress

an suffrage question, although it is to be discussed at the international Woman's Congress which is in the other subjects taken under con-

MINISTER TO VENEZUELA
RESIGNS FROM SERVICE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Caracas, Venezuela, June 2.—Elliott
Northcott, United States minister to Venezuela, has resigned from the diplomatic service. He sailed today on the legation.

The Almighty Dollar With a Hole
In It.

We all like to think that our own dollar is sound and worth 100 cents. If some one tried to pass us a dollar with a hole in it or one plugged with lead, we make an emphatic protest.
And yet some of us go along,
day by day, letting each of our dollars buy us an average of about 75 cents.
All of which comes from the unthrifty American habit of careless spending, or in other words, buying things in a hurry
without thought and consideration.
In a new and bountiful country like ours it is a natural result of too much prosperity.
There is, however, a growing class of people who realize that it pays well to think as they buy. To all such we recommend the advertising pages of The Gazette which offer reliable information and suggestion to intending purchasers.

DECLARES DECISION
IN EKERN CASE IS
A STEP BACKWARDChief Justice Winfield of Supreme Court Filed Dissenting Opinion
in Court Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis., June 2.—Characterizing the decision of the majority court in the Ekern-McGovern controversy as a step backward Chief Justice Winfield of the supreme court filed his dissenting opinion at the opening of the court today in which he said he fully agreed with Justice Banes. He said in part:
"The most serious infirmity in the decision in this case is I regard it not that it refuses to follow such sentiment
but is really a step backward and a signal to retreat rather than to advance.
He says that in presenting the case of a very important state office if an officer can convince the court that he was acting in good faith, he can practically deny the power of his superior officer to remove him and can remain in office for a month. The power to remove by a superior officer will be nerveless
this ought to be the policy of a democracy today. Much less of a democracy of the future. The legislature can always provide in express terms
for removal without hearing and it will do so more and more as time goes on."

STEEL CORPORATION
ORE SUPPLY LIMITEDHas Only Forty Years Supply While Pennsylvania Has Enough For Four Hundred Years.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, June 2.—The United Steel Corporation has a reserve of ore not in proportion to its production and not in comparison with its competitors
it was said by Judge Egbert Gary who is engaged in the suit to dissolve the corporation. This testimony was adduced to R. V. Linebury attorney for the corporation and in reply to the government's charges that the corporation has a monopoly of ore.
The steel corporation at the present time has only forty years supply of ore testified the witness while the Pennsylvania steel corporation has enough to last five or six hundred years and the Bethlehem Steel corporation has several million of tons. It was a fact that competition had been so large that in order to secure an adequate supply the corporation had been led to negotiate the Hill Ore League in 1907. The league was dissolved in 1911 because it was found by practice that the cost to us of concentration and other expenses were behind our expectations and because of the report of the commissioner of corporations in which it was stated that our ore reserve was so large as to be objectionable to the government and that it was our intention to maintain a monopoly of iron and steel.

At seven-thirty this evening the Twenty Five Thousand Club will be formally launched at the first annual meeting to be held in the assembly room of the city, as called in the official call of the corporation which was recently incorporated under the state laws. At this time twelve directors will be named who in turn

These, with the eight other directors, will constitute the governing board of the corporation.

The meeting will be open to members and members will be allowed to cast their votes for the directors to

stead of electing the officers, they will be chosen by the board of directors pursuant to the suggestion of the secretary of state in such matters. The election will be held ac-

Hall and J. L. Postwick. Just how the new directors will be chosen or whether the present members of the directorate will be retained and three additional ones chosen, remains to be decided at tonight's meeting.

Aside from the factory of several possible factories that may locate here in the immediate future, Paul Heinz, who has invented a threshing machine, will report he has secured capital and will report he has named a clear after the new club.
Much interest is displayed over the meeting and it is expected there will be a large attendance.

LOUISIANA SENATOR
SCORES FREE SUGARDeclares that Democratic Party is Violating Pledge and Playing
Into Hands of Sugar Trust.

Washington, June 2.—Senator Randell of Louisiana, in a prepared speech today, declared verbal broadsides at the so-called "sugar trust" declaring that the free schedule of the tariff bill "violated the pledge of the Baltimore platform not to destroy legiti-mate industry and declared that in supporting free sugar, the democratic party will be playing into the hands of the sugar trust and other refiners."
Mr. Randell made the statement that the cane industry of Louisiana supplied "half a million souls" that the beet sugar industry employed 150,000 people with 500,000 dependants upon it, and that 200,000 people in Hawaii depended upon sugar. The refiners, he declared, employed about 10,000 men.
Directly attacking the so-called sugar trust, Senator Randell reviewed the customs clause on the government anti-trust suit against the American Sugar Refining company and declared that former Attorney General Wickersham referred to some of the refiners as "criminals of unparalleled depravity."
The campaign for free sugar, he charged, was conducted by the refiners to "distract attention from themselves."

RULES THAT ARE NOT ALWAYS FOLLOWED UP

State Board of Health Has Issued Rules Which Must be Followed—Time for Action.

Summer vacations of schools are the times when repairs are made. There are several schools in Janesville that will be subject to extensive repairs and alterations. The health and sanitation of the school children is one of the most essential features of school life. To insure this the school building must be sanitary. That there may be no mistake as to what the state board of health has prescribed for sanitation and general health of the pupils the rules and regulations are printed below.

Rules of the State Board of Health.
Adopted January 29, 1913.

In addition to the rules pertaining to the prevention and control of contagious diseases adopted by the Wisconsin state board of health and published in the official state paper on August 27, 1907, and January 23, 1910, the following rules for the prevention and control of dangerous, communicable diseases and for the sanitary care of schools are hereby declared to be of general application.

Under the authority granted by Section 1409A-2 of the statutes, authorizing the state board of health to adopt and enforce rules pertaining to the prevention of inflammation of the eyes of newborn babies by diseases known as ophthalmia neonatorum, the state board of health hereby publishes and declares the following rule to be of general application throughout the state. This rule was officially adopted by the state board of health on January 29, 1913. The rules have all the force of law and must be enforced by health officers and school officials.

Rule 16. Infantile blindness. Any physician, midwife, nurse or other person in attendance on a confinement case, shall, within two hours after the birth of the child, use one of the following prophylactic treatments for the prevention of infantile blindness or ophthalmia neonatorum:

1. Two drops of a one per cent fresh solution of nitrate of silver to be dropped in each eye after the eyelids have been opened.

2. Two drops of a one per cent solution of argyrol or two drops of a one per cent solution of protargol should be dropped in each eye in the same manner as when silver nitrate is used.

Rules Relating to the Sanitary Care of Schools.

Under the authority granted by section 1403 of the statutes, authorizing the state board of health to adopt and enforce rules for the proper sanitary care of schools, the state board of health hereby publishes and declares the following rules to be of general application throughout the state. These rules were officially adopted by the state board of health on January 29, 1913.

Rule 17.—All teachers, school authorities and health officers having jurisdiction shall not permit the attendance of any private child or child of a school of any pupil afflicted with a severe cold, a severe cough, itchy nose or other vermin, or any contagious skin disease, or who is filthy in body or clothing, or who has any of the following contagious diseases, or infectious diseases, to-wit: Diphtheria, smallpox, scarlet fever, measles, whooping-cough, chicken-pox, mumps, pulmonary tuberculosis, Asiatic cholera, (cholera), yellow fever, typhoid fever, plague, cerebro spinal meningitis or acute anterior poliomyelitis. The teachers in all schools shall, without delay, send home any pupil who is afflicted with any of the above diseases, or who is afflicted with any disease listed in Rule 17, or who has recently been afflicted with such diseases, unless they have the written permission of the local health officer having jurisdiction.

Rule 18.—Parents, guardians or other persons having control of any child who is sick in any school or who is afflicted with any disease listed in Rule 17, shall not permit said child to attend any public, private or parochial school or to be present in any public place.

Rule 19.—School teachers, pupils or other persons shall not be admitted to any public, private or parochial school who have come from, or who reside in any house or building which harbors or is infected with any disease listed in Rule 17, or who have recently been afflicted with such diseases, unless they have the written permission of the local health officer having jurisdiction.

Rule 20.—Schoolhouses shall have in each classroom at least fifteen square feet of floor space, and not less than two hundred cubic feet of air space per pupil and shall provide for an approved system of indirect heating and ventilation by means of which each classroom shall be supplied with fresh air at the rate of not less than thirty cubic feet per minute for each pupil, and warmed to maintain an average temperature of degrees Fahrenheit during the coldest weather.

Rule 21.—Local health officers having jurisdiction shall, without delay, dismiss forthwith any school-room in which at least 200 cubic feet of air space is not supplied to each pupil. The school authorities shall, without delay, make provisions for the pupils in accordance with the requirements stated in Rule 20.

Rule 22.—Proper ventilation must be provided in all school-rooms and when ventilation ducts do not exist, or are inadequate, it shall be the duty of the teacher to flood the school-room with fresh air by opening windows and doors at recess and noon time, and whenever the air becomes close and foul. Pupils should be given gymnastic exercises during the time the windows are open in cold weather. When windows are the only means of ventilation, they should be so constructed as to admit of ready adjustment both at the top and bottom, and some device shall be provided to protect the pupils from currents of cold air. The top of the windows shall be as near the ceiling as the mechanical construction of the building will allow.

Rule 23.—It shall be unlawful for any school board, board of school directors, board of education, or other school officials in Wisconsin, to use a common heating stove for the purpose of heating any school room, unless each such stove shall be in part enclosed within a shield or jacket made of galvanized iron or other suitable material, and of such height as to be placed as to protect all pupils while seated at their desks from direct rays of heat.

Rule 24.—Light shall be admitted from the side or from the left and rear of classrooms. The glass area of windows shall equal at least one-fifth of the floor area of the school room and no pupil shall be farther removed from the principal source of light than twenty feet.

Rule 25.—All floors must be thoroughly swept, or cleaned by a vacuum cleaner each day, either after the close of school or in the afternoon, or one hour before the opening of school in the morning. Before sweeping or

started the floors must be sprinkled with water, moist sawdust, or other substance so as to prevent the raising of dust.

Rule 26.—All schoolhouses must be supplied with pure drinking water. If the drinking water is obtained from wells, satisfactory troughs and drains must be provided so as to carry away the waste water and prevent the creation of mud-holes near the opening of the well. When water is not supplied at the pump, from water faucets, or from sanitary flowing drinking fountains, covered tanks or covered coolers, with free flowing faucets, must be supplied. All drinking fountains should be constructed of smooth glass or pressed metal.

Rule 27.—Water closets, dry closets and outhouses shall be kept clean and sanitary at all times. Water closets and dry closets, when provided, shall be efficient in every particular, and when water closets are not provided, outhouses for males shall have urinals arranged with stalls, and with conduits of galvanized iron, or other impervious material, draining into a sewer vault or other suitable place.

Rule 28.—Health officers shall enforce these rules and promptly enter prosecution for any violation thereof.

NOTE.—In order to comply with the provisions of Rule 20, regarding heating in connection with a furnace or steam plant the flues for admitting fresh air to the room must have a horizontal area of not less than one square foot for each one person that the room will accommodate.

2. The flues for a fan system of ventilation shall have a horizontal area of not less than one square foot for each fifteen persons that the room will accommodate. The ventilation of school buildings by this system should be so designed that the air pressure in any classroom will be in excess of that of the outside air.

3. The introduction of cold air from the outside of the building at the base of a direct radiator, known as the "direct indirect" system of ventilation must not be used.

4. One or two room buildings, heated by hot air, stoves, or furnaces, should have a cold air intake through a section of which is equal to 0.004 of the floor area of the room or rooms heated. The vent flues should have a net area equal to that of the cold air intake.

DANIEL S. CUMMINGS INJURED IN RUNAWAY

Right Ear Nearly Severed and Bruises Sustained On Head and Neck—Thrown Under Ladders.

Daniel S. Cummings, father of Councilman Roy M. Cummings, had his right ear nearly severed and sustained bad cuts and bruises on his head, neck and right hand in a runaway near the corner of Wall and Washington Streets this morning which threatened to have even more serious consequences. Mr. Cummings was driving a horse and buggy down Washington Street with a light wagon loaded with ladders and staking to be used in painting a house. As he went on the forward end of the horse which was known as "Cummings" began to kick and plunge. It started to mount the curb on the right hand side and when the front wheel of the horse struck the curb Cummings was thrown out, and all the ladders and staking on top of him. The horse freed itself from most of the harness and swung round so far that Mr. Cummings was in danger of being trampled on, but Mr. Cummings was able to quiet the horse and remove the ladders that were heaped upon him.

In response to the calls of Mr. Burgess for assistance, people living near the scene of the accident telephoned for physicians. Dr. W. W. Brown and William H. McGuire responded and after dressing the minor wounds took him to the hospital in an automobile where his ear was sewed up. Mr. Cummings was removed to his home. He suffered no internal injuries and was unconscious for but a few moments.

ROCKFORD FESTIVAL OPENS ON TUESDAY

Elaborate Preparations Have Been Made for Celebration of Homecoming Week.

Rockford citizens have rallied to celebrate the great festival of June 3, 4, 5 and 6, and already Thursday preparations have been spent on a program which will rival anything ever attempted in northern Illinois.

Motorcycles and automobiles to the number of several hundred will participate in the parade and on School Children's day, the 10,000 pupils of the city will take part in a most remarkable pageant.

The Faine Fireworks company will put on four of their programs and their expert who is now completing his plans for the Rockford event, says that no festival in the country is giving the high class night-y pageant that Rockford will offer.

Jimmy Ward, one of the most famous aeroplane experts of this country, will give a daily flight over the city. Ward was at Rockford two years ago and thrilled crowds with his daring flights over the country of that vicinity.

The festival will have a Military day for a starter and in this soldiers of the state and the Boy Scouts from many towns will take part. Industrial day is one of the most important. School Children's day is expected to be one of the greatest events of the kind ever attempted in this part of the state from the unusually big plan of the festival; the good time side has not been overlooked and a bunch of the latest "boosters" in Illinois are preparing to give the visitors the time of their lives. Homecoming and Rockford welcomes everybody, invites everybody and promises a good time to every man, woman and child who comes to the great festival. Remember the dates, June 3, 4, 5 and 6.

CORRECTION.

Through an error in the correction of proof in the "Booster Primer" of Saturday, a line omitted in one paragraph made no sense to it. The entire paragraph corrected is printed here.

There are many such towns in this country and their condition is due entirely to the fact that they are giving up the nourishment which they should retain to other towns and suffer in consequence. Whenever a consumer sends his money elsewhere instead of his home merchant he robs his town of so much nourishment. Whenever a consumer buys an out of town made article, he but half robs his town. But when a merchant passes up a home factory to supply the consumer with outside goods he deals the deadliest blow of all against his own material interests as well as that of his townspeople.

MRS. WORRY. AND JOHN HAD BEEN SO PENITENT.

In freakishness of temperament, Pitcher Baumgardner of the Browns is likened to Rube Waddell. In mechanical ability in the box, Tex Russell is said to be a second Rube. Russell came unheralded from Fort Worth to the White Sox, and has been the best winner Callahan has used.

Doe White, who has been in major league baseball twelve years, has only been hit once by a pitched ball. That was last week, when Recruit Pitcher Clarence Smith of the Sox whacked him on the elbow during batting practice.

Natty McCue, the young Radne featherweight, would meet a setback at the hands of the veteran Patsy Brannigan of Pittsburgh. Brannigan has been in 300 ring contests, yet has never been knocked out nor has he lost a decision.

While we were congratulating ourselves that we would not have to wrestle with Stanislaus Zbyszko's report that his skull was cracked, his injuries are nothing that will keep him out of the game.

With Maurice McLoughlin playing at top form and Eddie Hackett showing steady improvement, the chances of the American tennis team against the Australians look most promising. The first preliminary for the Davis cup will be played June 6-9.

CARDINALS BEATEN BY BELOIT RIVALS

Van Patten Colts of Beloit Defeat Janesville Cardinals by 9 to 4 Score.

Due to a general "blow-up" in the third inning in which six runs were scored against them, the Janesville Cardinals met their second defeat in the hands of the Van Patten Colts, of Beloit, by a 9 to 4 score Sunday afternoon at the driving park. Outside of this disastrous inning the Cardinals held their own with their opponents and made desperate effort to make the score at least close.

The Cardinals displayed little of their usual "pep" and the grounders slipped through their gloves with too much regularity. Connell was on the mound for the locals and outside of the third inning pitched creditable ball as the Beloit players were only able to corral eight hits of his delivery. After the fourth inning he seemed to gain confidence and with good support the visitors should not have broken into the run column again.

Wilson caught an excellent game, holding the base runners close to the sacks and catching several who attempted to steal, by three feet off the bag. The entire infielders with the exception of Sullivan were guilty of errors and the majority of them proved fatal to the locals' chance of winning. The outfield also fell down on several occasions that would have killed several scores had not Beloit to shove her share of runs up to nine.

The Van Patten Colts played whirlwind ball throughout the game and made the locals fight their hardest to score. Luck was with them throughout the game and they made the most of every opportunity. Flynn started the game for the Line City team but when the clouds began to gather in the sixth inning, with several clean hits scored two runs for the locals, he retired in favor of Lee Moon, who mixing up a spitter, which was about half bluff and fast ones, held the Cardinals batters scoreless. The Cardinal batters seemed unable to hit either Beloit pitchers' offerings more than to pop easy flies.

Burger first man up for the Cardinals damaged Flynn's straight one for a single and scored after being sacrificed to second, on a long hit by Sullivan. The locals scored again in the second and with "Andy" pitching air tight ball it looked bad for Beloit. In the third the sky was the Cardinals' and after the storm six Colts crossed the plate, Moon was safe on an error and was advanced to second where Connell threw wild to first. Scott hit a Texas leaguer over second and the bases were filled to the brim, when Connell hit Glissman.

Two hits followed and the bases were normal again with Beloit with a run lead. The Colts started all over again and errors by Porter and Burger were filed to the circuit. Three more runs were scored and finally Connell developed enough speed to fan the next batter for the third out. Beloit was unable to see Connell through the next two innings, three of them going out of the "wind" route. Janesville scored two in the sixth after Sullivan singled and scored on Nehr's double. Beloit threatened to start another rally in the seventh and scored two runs in the seventh but Nehr stopped all further scoring by a running catch of a long fly. Beloit's last score was made in the eighth when Wood made a home run on a single, the ball being lost in the deep grass in the outfield. Moon held the locals safe and the Janesville batters did not see second white he was pitching.

The Van Patten Colts seem to be the final met the Cardinals as the last time they met the Beloit team won by a one run score after Janesville had the game clinched during the early stages.

Summary.—Janesville Cardinals:—Wilson, c; Connell, p; Lee, ss; Porter, 1b; Sullivan, 2b; Harper, 3b; B. Burger, lf; Nehr, cf; and F. Burger, rf.

Van Patten Colts:—Ripley, c; Flynn and Moon, p; Glissman, 1b; Moon and Ryan, 2b; Wood, 3b; Scott, Bunker city.

The Nationals.—The Janesville Nationals had things their own way in their Sunday contest at Alton against the Alton Giants and won by a 10 to 1 score. The reason for the decisive score was due to star pitching by Le Fern, who let down the Alton youngsters with one clean hit. Errors also helped the locals to run such a big lead.

Janesville Nationals:—Fineran, c; Le Fern, p; McGinley, ss; Skelly, 1b; Slawson, 2b; Hovaland, 3b; Murphy, W. Skelly, McLaughlin, and Merrick, fielders.

TO SMASH RECORDS AT MEET SATURDAY

Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet at Madison Promises Plenty of Sensations.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]—Madison, Wis., June 2.—That from one-third to one-half of the present conference records will go to pieces next Saturday in the annual western intercollegiate track and field meet, to be held here under the auspices of the University of Wisconsin, is assured if the work of the contestants in previous meets is any criterion. From Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Missouri to California, college athletes who will compete here have already broken the record in several events.

Nicholson of Missouri, Case of Illinois, Beeson of California and Kelly of Southern California have all equalled the world's record of 15.1 seconds for the 120-yard high hurdles. Each of these is a wonderful runner in this event. Kelly, who ran the distance in the Olympic meet at Stockholm, is said to have made it in 14.1 seconds unofficially.

Two coast and two western runners will clash in the 10-yard dash. Torney of Wisconsin, McGowan and Phelps of Illinois, will oppose Kelly of Southern Wisconsin and Wood of California. Several of these men have made the distance in 9.4-5 seconds, which is the collegiate record. Torney won his event from Minnesota Saturday with only five days of training in 10.2 seconds.

California, Illinois, Chicago and Wisconsin will fight a royal battle for first honors in the one-mile relay race. The event generally is conceded to Illinois, whose team of Henderson, Hunter, Sanders and Corrie won the Pennsylvania games and is the world's championship relay team. Its time for the event was three minutes 21.2-5 seconds, or an average of 50.1 seconds per man for the entire 440 yards. The 440-yard record is but 47.2 seconds. The hammer throw is said to be almost certain to be won by Shattuck of California, whose mark of 176 feet 10 inches in practice is nearly twelve feet farther than the conference record. Gold of Wisconsin, holder of the world's indoor pole vaulting record, will meet strong competition but is expected by Cardinal supporters to win the event. He has vaulted 12 feet 8 inches indoors, which easily ties the present outdoor record. Young of California, Floyd of Missouri, Stevens of Notre Dame, and Soboling of Illinois have vaulted over the twelve-foot bar and will be respected competitors.

Minnesota has sent word that it will be represented by only three men—Wilcox, Lambert and Spink. Oberlin college had withdrawn its entry, and the University of Colorado has recently entered a team of two men both record-breakers. The final entry list will be cut down by elimination from 298 to 225 men.

PLAYGROUNDS.

That the question of municipal playgrounds is a problem that is considered essential to the future of the American people by the big men of the country is evidenced by the fact that James J. Hill has made arrangements to buy the playgrounds bonds of the city of St. Paul. This playground question is a serious one. Janesville has made many false starts in this direction but now is the time for concerted action. If the city has not grounds or money to equip really suitable playgrounds, why not utilize the school grounds? It is feasible and has been done elsewhere. Madison has many playgrounds and also its school grounds equipped with apparatus. The Fond du Lac Commonwealth says of Mr. Hill's action in purchasing the bonds of the city of St. Paul:

"Mr. Hill has just completed arrangements by which the various bond issues of the city of St. Paul will be purchased by himself and his associates and then offered to the people in denominations of $10, through the Northwestern Trust company of that city. In this Mr. Hill has rendered the people of his home city a double service. He has financed their public securities and placed them within the reach of the small purchaser. But he has done more. He has emphasized the fact that St. Paul's first need is better playgrounds. This his order reads: 'Buy the playground bonds first. Give the children the advantage of the first venture. These bonds have remained unsold for a long time and it will do the most good that way.'"

"The playgrounds bond issue amounts to $25,000. The money will be spent in grading, fencing, planting, erection of shelter houses and purchase of equipment for the new Randall street playground, the Robert street and Sylvan playgrounds, and re-fencing and re-planting other playgrounds where such improvements are needed. That this money will be well spent we have the authority of James J. Hill himself and there are few better authorities on the matter of investments."

SIGNIFICANT REMARKS.

In view of the fact that Governor McGovern has sent in his veto of the so-called woman's suffrage bill, which passed both houses of the legislature, the remarks of the Archbishop Messmer of Milwaukee on the subject of suffrage is not amiss at this time. It will be seen that Bishop Messmer does not stop at stiles, but hurdles the whole question.

"My firm belief is that woman suffrage granted on the demand of the modern woman's movement, would do the greatest harm to the family and the state."

"There is far too much unchristian, infidel sentiment connected with that movement for anyone who holds Christianity to let aside."

"The principles upon which this movement is supported are unchristian."

"I will not for one moment admit the absolute perfect equality of man and woman."

"The next step will be that woman has the same rights and the authority in the church as man."

"In the whole work of the human race, woman has another work to perform than man."

"Propagation of the race is only a condition required for the work intended by the Creator."

"The prevailing majority of Catholic teachers, theologians and philosophers deny the political equality of men and women."

"God has determined that woman should be inferior to man."

"BREECHES" AGAIN.

This is the time of year when college students blossom forth in their summer togery. But those at Yale, instead of arraying themselves in the customary ducks and flannels, have taken to knickerbockers.

Can this be the dawn of new sartorial liberty for men? The stovepipe trouser is an abomination even worse than the plug hat and the stiff, white collar. It "draws" on the leg and gets baggy and shiny at the knee and frayed at the bottom. Who can, by the widest stretch of the imagination, consider it beautiful—especially the kind that is turned up on the lower end and bulges at the hip?

In the old, bicycling days, men learned what comfort there is in knickerbockers. They got to wearing them in office and shop. But they were timid about it and as soon as the bicycling craze died out, they gave them up.

Knickerbockers—the "breeches" of our forefathers—are artistic as well as comfortable. They have the dignity of chivalric lineage and present, courtly usage. As to natural deficiencies which might be revealed below them, few Americans have cause to worry on that account, besides which that is a matter easily remedied with a little stuffing.

If all the other colleges but follow Yale and their sons remain true to the cause, the nation will soon be freed from the thrall of long "pants."

A RIGHTEOUS VERDICT.

The vindication of Colonel Roosevelt in the Michigan court, is occasion for congratulation in which even his enemies will share. It is so easy to destroy the reputation of a man in public life, that many people in all parts of the country believed the idle story which caused Editor Newett so much trouble, and plenty of men who claimed to have personal knowledge of the facts, freely denounced the colonel as a dissipated man. Yet one of these slanderers could be found to take the stand in Newett's defense.

It is an old saying that the easiest way for a man to find out how bad he is, is to run for office, for the law of libel furnishes but little protection, and in the heat of a campaign the private, as well as the public life of a candidate, is freely discussed.

While the press enjoys the reputation of being a free lance, because it publishes the news without fear or favor, the fact is generally recognized, in all well regulated newspapers, that private character is a sacred heritage, which no man has a right to wantonly attack.

The Michigan editor was misled by street rumors, and influenced by politics to publish the story which led to his arrest and humiliation. He was supporting a rival candidate for the presidency, and the mistake which he made was not an uncommon one.

The outcome may prove a profitable lesson to this class of publishers. The complete vindication of Colonel Roosevelt is gratifying to his friends and will add to his popularity. It is to be regretted that his habits of temperance do not include his speech, which sometimes runs riot.

TRUTH VS. EVIDENCE.

"I think I can give a fair verdict regardless of the evidence."

"That statement was made to the court by one of the venemore summoned for the Roosevelt damage case when he was questioned by the opposing attorneys. Needless to say, he was promptly expunged from serving on the jury."

But what a pity! It is so clearly apparent that his meaning was. And the distinction he unwittingly drew is so fair.

In order to be just, many a jury has to make its decision regardless of the evidence. It is the prime object of every lawyer engaged in a trial to get before the jury all the evidence which will benefit his client, whether fairly or not; and to block as far as possible the admission of all evidence inimical to his interests, whether fairly or not.

When a jury hears the judge say, after a spirited tilt between opposing counsel, that certain testimony is "disputed," shall be stricken from the record, it knows that evidence is important. And a jury knows when a witness is lying quite as often as the lawyer who is examining him.

The Marquette venemore reflected the American people's opinion of their judicial system and without intent voiced the strongest indictment that has been brought against it.

THE NEW CLUB.

Tonight marks the formal launching of the Twenty-five Thousand club of Janesville, composed of citizens who want to see the city grow, see new factories established and other radical changes made. The club has been incorporated and tonight holds its first formal meeting to elect its officers. It will name a president, secretary, treasurer, vice-president, and eight directors; these twelve men being chosen by the members to handle their interests. It is hoped that good men, who have their heart in the work, will be named and care should be taken in selecting them. Now is the crucial moment for Janesville and the men chosen tonight will have much to do within the next twelve months. Already there is an excellent prospect of one good sized factory and two small ones, being located here within the next few months, and with this as a nucleus there is no reason why the city should not grow rapidly. Every member of the Twenty-five Thousand club is urged to be present at tonight's meeting and express their views on the matter in selecting the officers.

THE U. C. T.

Janesville this week will welcome the United Commercial Travelers of the state. It will be a gala occasion and it is expected that fully fifteen or sixteen hundred of the knights of the grip will be guests of the city. Janesville should put on its best bib and tucker for the event and spare no effort to make their stay pleasant.

A Louisiana town celebrated the recovery of a lost child by taking a half holiday. Which is a pointer the small boys of that town are not likely to overlook.

Captain Kidd, with nothing but his private craft, did the best he could. Textbooks were not invented then.

A western paper, on Monday, printed the weather forecast for Sunday. The only safe way.

"Japan accepted the statement of Secretary Bryan in the spirit in which it was sent." Has William abandoned grape juice in his diplomatic work?

CAPTURE MOMENT

Noise.

The loudest brayin' mule is not the one that hauls the load.

The quiet one just buckles in.

And yanks it long the road.

The loudest soundin' o'atmobile.

Ain't always got most power.

The quiet rumblin' gas machine.

Plugs long hour after hour.

The loudest band is not the one

We like the best to hear.

And it is not the one that makes

Sweet music to the ear.

The feller with the gift of gab

May make a blunder and yet

The quiet feller is the one

On whom you want to bet.

The Hat.

I never suited anybody yet

When I fared forth in spring to buy a lid.

The oily salesman said that I must get a thing that was designed for some young kid.

My wife opines that I'd look really

cute

In one that she selects. The color's green

It's got a feather on it. It's a beaut.

But in the thing I wouldn't 'er be seen.

The children all have their own ideas.

They want the old man all dolled

up and slick.

They favor one of dainty azure blue.

I tie a can to that one doggone

quick.

I hear what everybody has to say

And turn down chump suggestions

quick as a cat.

And then I very calmly go my way.

And buy another staid black derby hat.

Modern Epitaphs.

Here lies the bones of Ezra Jones.

He raised his gin one night.

He'd heard of deadly microbes, but he didn't think they'd bite.

Oh, shed a tear, Bill Hanks lies here.

We'll inform you, should you ask

That he stepped in front of a touring car.

And they took him home in a basket.

Beneath this stone lies Amos Brown.

He tried to be a poet.

And make his living by his verse.

He starved to death. You know it.

According to Uncle Abner.

When a feller tries to buy a load of hay he finds out that the boss ain't so much of a has-been as it might be.

It seems as though a woman is always either just beginning it just getting through housecleaning.

The canning season is at hand and the divorce courts show that a good many wimmen are canning their husbands.

If a feller has got a million dollars and a lot of nerve there is no reason

why he shouldn't git along fairly well

in this world.

It takes more'n a pair of eyeglasses

to make a good newspaperman.

Nobody lit war a dress suit in the afternoon excepting a feller that plays in the orchestra.

There are a lot of great authors in this country who never had anything

published. It beats all what a lot of times the magazine editors are.

It is pretty hard to prove anything

on a feller who wears thick eyeglasses.

KELLY INJUNCTION

Burpee Injunction Only Existing Obstacle to Finishing Improvement of Center Avenue.

Since the settlement and awarding of judgment in the suit of John J. Kelly versus the city of Janesville, in which the former secured an injunction from the circuit court on the ground that the city attempted to macadamize Washington avenue when the council had not authorized it, and in which one obstacle has remained to the improvement of that thoroughfare, the injunction of F. C. Burpee, and prospects are now hopeful that the settlement of the case and the dissolution of the injunction. The parties interested in the suit have been holding conferences with this end in view, and proposals are now under consideration.

Some time later the settling of the Kelly case the common council fixed a grade on Center avenue and ordered the same improved. Attorney Burpee received a temporary injunction from the circuit court on October 31, 1911, which is still pending. The then present City Attorney H. L. Maxfield stipulated the injunction might remain in force until finally tried.

Center avenue is in a very poor condition for travel, although not dangerous. The macadam was left in a partially completed state, with no surface of stone, and is consequently very rough. Two blocks are in this condition and the rest is unimproved.

Following the ceremony an elaborate wedding dinner was served to the guests under the direction of Mrs. Louise Bowerman, caterer. The dining room was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of pink and green. Baskets of pink roses were the centerpiece for the tables and at each place were pink sweet peas. ## FLOOR OF SHOP GIVES WAY UNDER HEAVY WEIGHT

Section 12x20 Feet in Dimension at Larson Machine Shop Collapsed.

As a result of being overloaded a section of floor about 12x20 feet in the north side of the Larson machine shop on North River street, collapsed Sunday night about 7:30 and dropped from four to five feet carrying with it several tons of machine castings.

Whether any of the castings were damaged cannot be determined until they are all lifted out. The collapse of the floor, which was heard very distinctly, was the fire station across the street and as far away as the corner of River and Milwaukee streets but the source of the noise was not learned until this morning.

DR. J. W. LAUGHLIN RESIGNS POSITION; EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1

Pastor of Presbyterian Church Will Leave City After Eight Years of Service.

The Reverend J. W. Laughlin, in a letter yesterday to J. R. Lamb, clerk of session of the First Presbyterian church of this city, resigned his position as pastor of the church to become effective Sept. 1, 1913. This will complete his eighth year of service in the Janesville pastorate.

During his ministerial work in this city Dr. Laughlin has accomplished much for the welfare of the church and congregation. He has also been actively interested in the affairs of the city and has won the friendship of a large circle of men and women outside of his congregation, as well as among the Presbyterians. His retirement from the local church is to be regretted by citizens generally.

It is understood that the resignation came about as the result of differences between Dr. Laughlin and the trustees of the church over the management of church affairs. His resignation will be acted upon at the next meeting of the Madison Presbyterian church.

Dr. Laughlin's future plans have not been announced as yet.

HOUSE DRESS DEPARTMENT SOUTH ROOM. J.M. BOSTWICK & SONS. HOUSE DRESS DEPARTMENT SOUTH ROOM.

The "Double Service" House Dresses

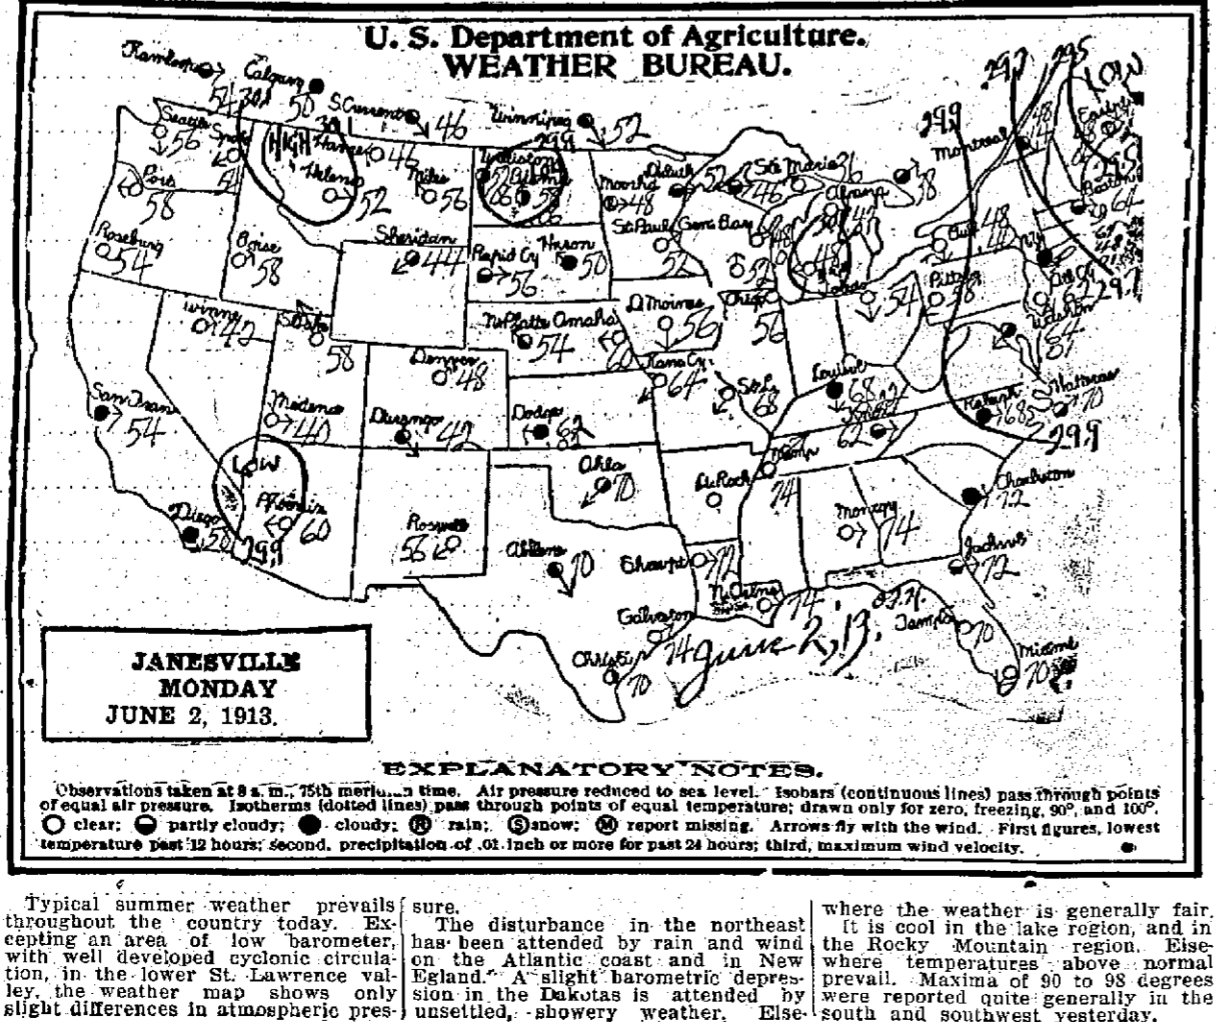

They are the most practical and useful house dress ever designed. So cleverly constructed are these "Double Service" dresses that they do duty as apron and dress.

The illustration gives some idea of how they are made; no buttons to fasten—no inconvenient hooks and eyes—They're slipped on and adjusted in a jiffy by a belt around the waist which snaps in the back with patent fasteners.

What every woman knows about house dresses makes her eager to find something better than the usual garment. From the back it looks like a shirt waist and skirt, in the front it folds on the lines of the Russian blouse, so much in vogue at present; it fastens neatly at the neck and looks as trim as heart could wish. By moving the belt the garment may be made to fit perfectly, either short, medium or long-waisted persons. Costs no more than ordinary house dresses, but cheaper in the end because of their "Double Service" features. We have just received another big shipment of these dresses, the materials are neat percales in checks and stripes, made with high and low neck;

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WHAT WILL COME NEXT.

THEY say the average life of the human being is growing longer. Not being a scientist or a statistician I hadn't noticed that. But being a woman I have noticed that the average life of a gown is growing rapidly shorter.

In our grandmother's day a gown—they were flocks then, I believe—was laid away only when it had been turned and made over two or three times and was unquestionably worn out.

In our mother's day the life of a gown—I believe they were dresses then—was, not quite so prolonged. They were seldom made over more than once and were laid away when they became shabby, instead of actually worn out.

In our day a dress is almost never made over and is laid away because the style has changed slightly or because we think our friends must be tired of seeing it. In our daughter's day—well, one shrinks from prophesying how long will be the life of a gown then, and for what trivial causes it will be condemned to the rag-bag.

A friend of mine was asking me yesterday if I had seen any pretty afternoon gowns in the shops. "Haven't a thing to wear to the bridge next Friday," she said, "so I must get something ready-made." "Why, where's that blue crepe de chine?" I asked. She turned up her nose in deep disgust. "Everyone must be sure to death of the blue crepe de chine," she said. "These new spring styles make it look so old-fashioned. Oh yes, I did have it in February, but you know there has been a distinct change in style since then. Oh no, it isn't at all worn. You think it's becoming? Well, I have come in to get it made much for it."

Twenty-five years ago that afternoon gown would have lasted at least a year, probably more. Fifty years ago it would undoubtedly have been her "best" for two seasons and "second best" for the next. I have already called your attention to the modern sub-division of labor among gowns. That is, the limiting of the number of occasions to which any one gown is suitable, and the consequent need of more gowns. That is a bad enough condition, but this tendency makes it still worse. Not only must the woman who wants to be considered moderately well-dressed have a gown for each of these occasions, every season.

Fashions change more rapidly each year. Once on a time there were spring fashions and fall fashions. Today new fashions out the old almost every month.

I believe it is absolutely wrong for a woman to devote her life to a mad scramble to keep up with eternally fleeting fashions; wrong even if she can afford it financially, doubly wrong if she cannot.

slice in a moderate sized cucumber and put with radishes. Mix in equal quantities of salad oil and vinegar, season with salt and pepper and pour the mixture over the salad. Sprinkle chopped capers and herbs over and serve.

Brandy Snaps—One pound sugar, eight ounces butter, three gills molasses, one-half ounce cinnamon, one pound flour. Stir butter and sugar lightly. Add molasses and spice, lastly flour; drop on well greased pans balls the size of a large flbert about four inches apart; bake. They will spread thin. When done let stand a few minutes.

FROZEN DISHES FOR OCCASIONS.

When serving an ice cream for company the addition of a sauce makes it a most attractive and elegant dessert. Prepare or buy the plain vanilla ice cream and pour over each serving the following sauce:

Chocolate Sauce—Cream a fourth of a cup of butter, add half a cup of sugar mixed with two tablespoons of cornstarch, add two squares of chocolate melted, and a pint of boiling water, a dash of cinnamon and salt, cook ten minutes, flavor with vanilla and serve.

Cocoa Parfait—Boil together a cup of sugar and a half-cup of boiling water, ten minutes; pour this syrup over four tablespoons of cocoa which has been beaten with four egg yolks; cook over hot water until a smooth, soft custard is formed, beat until cold; add two cups of cream, beaten stiff, two tablespoons of vanilla and a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt. Turn into a mold and pack in equal measures of salt and finely crushed ice. Let stand four hours. Serve garnished with whipped cream sweetened and flavored. If the cream is put through a pastry bag over the molded parfait, a most attractive dish is the result.

Chocolate is such a general favorite in any combination that another one may not be amiss.

Chocolate Mousse—Melt three ounces of chocolate, add a cup and a half of sugar and a cup of cream, boil one minute. Mix a tablespoonful of gelatin with a fourth of a cup of water and add to the boiling mixture; when cool, add a teaspoonful of vanilla, a dash of salt and the whip from three cups of cream. Pour into a mold and pack in equal parts of ice and salt. It will be ready to serve in four hours. If an oblong mold is used, serve it cut in even slices.

Things Worth Knowing. To Keep Rhubarb Fresh—If you have bought more rhubarb than you can use at once, it may be kept for two weeks without becoming wilted by cutting off the leaves and rapping the stalks in brown paper.

The Table. Cabbage Pudding—One large cabbage cut like cold-slaw and chopped fine. Boil ten minutes, drain. Add ready 1½ cups bread crumbs, one-half cup of sweet cream and one cup of milk, butter size of an egg, two eggs, well beaten, salt, pepper to taste, one tablespoon flour, one tablespoon sugar, mix altogether and bake 1½ hours in slow oven.

Npt Loaf—One and one-half cups sour milk, one-half cup brown sugar, three cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon soda, three quarters teaspoon salt, one-half cup chopped walnuts. Bake in medium oven three-quarters of an hour and let stand after mixing one-half hour before baking.

Fruit Cake—One pound of raisins, one pound of currants, the meats from one pound of English walnuts, one cup of brown sugar, one cup of molasses, one cup of butter, one cup of sweet milk, one teaspoon each of cinnamon, nutmeg and baking soda; three cups of flour, one tablespoon of brandy. Mix butter and sugar until creamy, add molasses, milk and soda dissolved in a little cold water, add flour and brandy and fruit well mixed and floured. Bake in a not too hot oven for an hour and table, cut the bread and butter and serve the reasonable fruit which is most plentiful, good and reasonable in price. Have the cookies previously made with light brown sugar, which is cheaper and better flavored and keeps moist much longer.

Cheese Custard. Material—Slices of bread, four; grated cheese, one and one-half cups; milk, one and one-half cups; egg, one; salt, one-half teaspoonful; paprika or pepper.

Directions—Cut the bread into slices one inch thick. Remove the crusts and save, toasted, for soups. Grease the baking dish and put in a layer of bread, cut out to fit dish, then a layer of grated cheese, and proceed again until the bread and cheese are used. Mix the beaten egg, salt, paprika and cheese and bake in a moderately quick oven until nicely browned. This is a very nutritious dish.

Lunch or Supper. Onion Soup au Gratin. Radishes, Bread and Butter. Preparation—Time, 30 minutes. Prepare the soup and let simmer 20 minutes. Set the table and have everything in readiness for the hot dish, which is very satisfying for lunch or supper.

Onions au Gratin. Material—Onions, four; butter and other fat, one-half cup; chopped parsley, one cup; salt, one-half teaspoon; two quarts water; one pint French bread toast, parmesan cheese. Directions—Melt the butter in the spider, add the sliced onions and cook until softened and yellow, then add the chopped parsley, stock, and water. Season with salt and paprika. Simmer 20 minutes. Put the toasted bread, sprinkled with cheese, over the casserole and strain the soup over it. Sprinkle again with cheese and put into the oven to brown slightly. This is a very hearty soup, especially good served at luncheon.

Every Day Talks For Every Day People... On my desk lies a letter from the manager of the Gazette telling me to turn one of my little "talks" into a tale of travel concerning the expense side of my trip to Chicago to write up "The World in Chicago" for this paper.

I am sorry he says to dwell on that part of my trip that has to do with "The World in Chicago" only as during my three days there in the interests of the Gazette I gathered enough information (it seems to me) to edit a book. It might not prove a "best seller" but it would excite one's curiosities, for if ever there was a Samantha Jr., well...

A kissing the pencil I want to tell you what happened in one of the exhibition stalls. They have statistics regarding every known subject under the sun, and this is very instructive and very interesting also. However, as it was late in the afternoon when I got to the "right" seeing as this one particular stall and I had been on the "go" since five that morn I was beginning to weary a bit. I want to say I never "chew gum."

I don't approve of the habit personally—just before entering the Coliseum where the exposition is held I stopped at a little Greek restaurant for a cup of coffee and to see how they run this little place that caters to the tourists and American Greeks of Chicago.

Coming out I bought a package of gum! Why? Oh! don't ask me. I suppose because it was to become later a weapon that would be turned upon me.

The god-natured throng at the Coliseum were mostly sight-seers like myself and one was pushed about some at some of the stalls, especially where the campfire girls were located and across the hall at the Boy Scout headquarters. The day was Boy Scouts' day of Chicago and of course local as well as outside interest centered outside around their headquarters.

In the rush I thought of my gum and following these unlucky impulse started to chew it.

A little later I edged my way to a stall where a very enthusiastic missionary was busy explaining where the money of our United States went and what it was spent for. She had blocks each one representing by their size the amount spent on shoes, food, jewelry and in fact most, if not all of our necessities, luxuries and evils. The blocks were of graduated sizes so one could easily follow her very interesting talks.

She was a very good talker—I became very much interested and edged nearer so as not to miss a word. As I was so curious, as my interest rose I began—unwillingly to chew my gum.

The missionary had a taking little brick of firing a question concerning the block showing of the "World in Chicago" which was being held until the 7th at the Coliseum where the exposition part of "The World in Chicago" is being held at about five or five-thirty and returning there eight-thirty or nine or nine-thirty and catch the ten-train from Chicago that arrives here shortly after midnight.

The itemized expense of a day's trip to Chicago to see the "World in Chicago" which was being held until the 7th at the Coliseum and the Auditorium could be kept down as low as this:—carefare $3.64, Auditorium (out 2:13) 25c, Coliseum at 5:25c, lunches $1.00, carefare 25c, Total $5.99. One could make the trip on a little less, and one could spend much more than the above sum and not regret it.

It is the most wonderful affair—if I may call it by so many a title—of modern times. It will repay one a hundred fold to take the trip and the manager of this paper thinks it would

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Last winter I met a very nice young man. He acted very nice to me, but I scorned his attentions. Now I feel very sorry, for he is a very nice boy. You know one of my girl friends always told me many little stories that did not help his reputation. Any I treated him cool, so naturally he treated me the same. But I find I care for him a great deal. Please advise me what to do.

READER: If he hasn't a good reputation I shouldn't think you would want him for a friend. If you find that your girl friend was mistaken, turn over a new leaf and be pleasant to the young man. If he cares anything about you he will give you an opportunity to tell him that you have found him to be quite a different young man from what you had been led to believe before you knew him. Well, don't tattle on your girl friend, however. He would disrespect you for it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—When going to get our marriage license we should accompany us. (2)—When going to church to get married who must walk with the bride—the groom or the best man? (3)—Is it nice to wear gloves in getting married? (4)—Must the bride put her arm under the man or the man under the bride? (5)—What flowers must the bride carry? Are roses good? Also what flowers for the bridesmaid to carry?

RICH GIRL AND STAR LIGHT. (1)—Take two witnesses with you—relatives or friends. (2)—The bride's father or the man who gives her away. (3)—Yes. (4)—The bride should take the arm of her escort. (5)—Roses would be pretty. The bridesmaid may carry roses, too, but they should be of a different color from those carried by the bride. If she carries white roses, they might carry pink ones.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Knowing you have given good advice to others I would like to receive a little myself. I am a young man, age twenty-five, with best of habits, have got a fairly good position, the salary of which is $90. Now Mrs. Thompson, I am not a young man who is used to cringing around and I would like to settle down and place a little girl by a gas stove in the kitchen to cook meals for life. What I want to know is simply this: Do you think I could keep a wife on the amount? I am going with one of the sweetest

TEMPERANCE LESSON IN ROOSEVELT SUIT

THE REVEREND JOSEPH C. HAZEN MAKES PERTINENT REMARKS ON TOPIC OF THE DAY.

ABSTEMIOUS HABITS

Colonel's Power of Example Would Have Been Infinitely Greater Could He Have Said He Never Drank.

Although Colonel Roosevelt received complete vindication of the charge that he was a drunkard in his suit against the Jesuit order at Marquette last week, his example for moral cleanliness and abstinence would have been infinitely greater if he could have testified that he had never taken a drink of any kind of intoxicating liquor. Instead of finding it necessary to admit that he occasionally drank light wines, this was the temperance lesson of the trial as dwelt upon by the Reverend Joseph C. Hazen in his address, at the Baptist church last evening.

"Col. Roosevelt frankly stated that he took champagne, or other light wines on various occasions," said Mr. Hazen. "It would be dealing with him severely, indeed, if he should be judged a drunkard on account of it. We would be compelled to classify the larger percentage of the men in public life, leaders of affairs at Washington, past and present, in the same category. But the pathetic thing about the whole matter lies in this: how much greater it would have been if Col. Roosevelt, our former president, one of the greatest men of the nation who is much in public review, had been able to say to the jury that he had never touched a drop of wine, that he had at all times refrained from the use of intoxicating liquor. It would have been a powerful example for temperance throughout the nation."

Mr. Hazen declared that he had felt that the charges which were made against Colonel Roosevelt had been advanced for political reasons. It was a sad commentary on our political machinery that such a thing should happen and be rejoiced in the fact that the story had been proven false. The entire episode merely emphasizes the great responsibility of men in public life to political leaders, newspaper editors and that class of persons, who by word or action may spread abroad either the truth or the false.

Although he was not of the same political faith, Mr. Hazen declared that he felt proud of the fact that there is at the head of affairs at Washington today men such as President Wilson and our countryman Bryan who can stand out and say that while they are leading in social affairs at the nation's capital, there shall be no wines at their functions. He admired the courage which President Wilson displayed at his formal dinner, he explained, to his guests that although he was departing from a long-standing custom of the White House, he felt sure that his guests would respect his wish.

He was only following out the conviction which had been inspired by his early training. At the Baptist convention at Detroit when the matter of the trial was being brought forth, a storm of applause greeted any other person who was present or than any address which was delivered so highly respected is the present Secretary of the National Temperance Society.

Mr. Hazen also told of meeting members of the Philadelphia Athletic baseball club of the American league during his stay at Detroit. In a conversation with one of their prominent players he asked him concerning their regulations as to eating and drinking. He was surprised to learn that there was no code laid down, but that every man was on his own responsibility. Most of the members of the team never drank liquor, a very few used tobacco, and they all kept early hours. When he inquired why, he was told that the manager could tell at once when the team were "warming up" whether any of the team had broken training and he was sure to detect the man who was out of condition. Such a man could not play the game; he weakened in the tight places and there was always a bench player who was ready to take his place and who was willing to keep in condition.

As it is among the baseball players, so it is in all walks of life, said Mr. Hazen in concluding his remarks. It is generally recognized that the habits of work, mental or physical that alcohol saps the strength of a man so that he cannot do his best. It isn't then a matter of the Bible's warning of the evils of intemperance, or of the fact that the church frowns upon it; it is simply a matter of whether a man cares to be temperate in order that he may do his best.

Although he took no text for his address a passage from Paul's epistle to the Galatians was pointed out as particularly applicable; "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

THE CORNET.

By Howard L. Rann.

THE cornet is a small brass instrument with a high tenor voice and a determined disposition to other brass instruments. It is a small, portable instrument, and is often used in military bands and orchestras. It is a very versatile instrument, and can play a wide variety of music. It is a very popular instrument, and is often used in schools and in amateur bands.

The cornet is played by blowing into a long, thin tube, which is called a mouthpiece. The player's lips vibrate against the mouthpiece, and this creates a sound. The sound is then amplified by the body of the instrument, which is made of brass. The cornet is a very loud instrument, and can be heard from a great distance.

THE DAUGHTER OF DAVID KERR

By
HARRY KING TOOTLE

Illustrations by RAY WALTERS

"Is there anything you want, dear?" she asked, going over to the bed.

As Mrs. Hayes looked down at the girl, she seemed to her like a lily that had been beaten by the wind and bruised by the rain and left all forlorn to die. In the girl's face she read the story of the last few hours.

"Is there anything you want, dear?" she repeated.

"Nothing."

Gloria looked up at her with a pathetic little smile of appreciation for her kindness. She threw one hand out on top of the cover, and Mrs. Hayes took it in hers. It was some time, however, before Gloria spoke.

"You heard everything?"

"Yes."

"And you understand?"

"I think I do, Gloria."

"Then there isn't anything much for me to tell you."

For a long time she preserved silence. Mrs. Hayes holding her hand but saying nothing.

"It isn't as if he had died," she began slowly, "almost as if just talking aloud to herself. I think I could have stood that. In time everything would have come to be just a beautiful dream. Paris and Belmont and all. In my heart I could always have cherished the memory of a strong, brave man, the man I thought he was. You know, Mrs. Hayes, he seemed to me to be very much like my father."

For a time she thought it over to herself. Mrs. Hayes did not press her, and continued to show her sympathy by holding her hand.

"Yes, it would have been a lot better had he died before I ever knew. What would have been a beautiful dream is now only a hideous nightmare. And I believed in him so! You who have seen just a little of him can't know how I loved him. It wasn't exactly love when we were abroad in the same party. Yes, it was; only I didn't know it. It wasn't until he had gone away and no word came from him that I knew how much he was to me. And then I met him here. Heaven seemed to open for me that night."

She turned her head for a minute, and the tears began to flow. When she began again her eyes were still blurred with tears.

"I can tell you, and I could tell Mrs. Gilbert, that it's going to hurt me a lot. It's going to hurt to think how I was deceived. I thought I was building my house of life upon a rock, and when the rains came I awoke to find the foundation was only shifting sand."

"We all have our troubles, dear," Mrs. Hayes told her. "Yours may seem hard to bear, but you must know that life can't all be painted in rainbow hues. I've taken you with me into Belmont's unhappiest homes, and what you have seen should teach you to bear your own trials with resignation and fortitude as a Christian should. Perhaps it's not well to think how much better off we are than other people, but when we do think of it we see that God has shown us abundant kindness compared to that given to others, and then our crosses are lighter."

"But I loved him so!" cried Gloria, burying her face in the pillow.

Mrs. Hayes could only clasp the girl's hand. The attempt to comfort her was unprofitable. Her grief was too new, her wounds too fresh for comfort. Longer and longer grew the intervals between her sobs. Finally Mrs. Hayes thought she had fallen asleep, but Gloria was still thinking. It came to her that she was still young. Love would never be hers, she was sure of that; but long years stretched out before her. She couldn't be a coward and shirk those years. Once she had built her house of love and life upon the quaking sands, now she would build her house of life upon the firm rock of service. In ministering to the unfortunate, she might find surcease for her own sorrow.

"Mrs. Hayes?"

"What, Gloria?"

"I'm not going to let anything that happened today spoil my life."

"Of course not, dear," said Mrs. Hayes, "but I don't know about the sunshine, but I do know that I want to go along just as if nothing had happened. Tomorrow let's do just what we planned to do, and the next day and the next. I want to keep busy. Can't you understand?"

Mrs. Hayes did understand, and admired the girl for her bravery.

"All right, Gloria. I think that is best. We weren't put into this world to have only the good things of life and shirk the bad things. We must take them as they come, the bad with the good. You are doing just what Mr. Wright would have you do if he were the man you thought him and he had died before your wedding day. Perhaps all will come out as you once had planned."

The daughter of David Kerr shook her head.

"That can never be."

She said no more, and after a time seemed to fall asleep. Mrs. Hayes clasped her hand, turned out the light, and left the room.

Through the windows streamed the moonlight. The girl, assured that she was alone, turned on her side and watched the beams creep slowly across the room.

What a flood of memories the moonlight brought!

Those first nights on shipboard had been under a silver moon that shed its rays upon a silver sea. Those nights in France a month later had been under a moon no less gorgeous. Then, had come the Rhine and there, too, had been moonlight.

She tried to think of him as he had been and not as he was. In him she had found every good trait a man should have. She was chagrined to think how easily it now appeared she had been won. How much she would have been spared, she pondered, had she not been so eager for his love as to show him so soon that she cared for him.

Every familiar gesture which was at all a part of him she knew would call him to mind when another man might make it. The way he held his cigar when he smoked, the odd manner in which he would look his hands together whenever a knotty problem bothered him, these little things and a host of others would come back to plague her.

All the dear, dead past crowded into her mind. It was not of the man whom that afternoon she had spurned that she thought, but of the man whom in her heart she cherished—her ideal.

With a mighty sob she began again to weep. There had come to her the realization that love was done. Far across the room the moonbeams crept before Gloria fell into a fitful slumber.

CHAPTER XVII

"I've forgotten what we'd planned for this afternoon," Gloria remarked to Mrs. Hayes the morning after the stormy scene in Judge Gilbert's office. Yesterday was carefully ignored by both as they talked.

"This was the day Mrs. Wallace asked us to help her at the mission," Mrs. Hayes explained.

She did not say further that she had telephoned earlier in the morning and had Mrs. Wallace, the matron, make plans whereby the whole afternoon would be taken up. She believed Gloria's peace of mind would be all the greater were she engaged in some work which would make her feel that through her the pain of the sufferer was alleviated and the bruised heart of the unhappy bound up.

It was just two o'clock when they reached the mission. They had not been there long before Mrs. Wallace suggested that they call on a poor girl who was ill in a room over Mike Noonan's saloon. The sick woman was known to her, but she told nothing of her story. It wasn't much different from any one of half a hundred she might have told.

The two women felt not the slightest fear in walking through such a tough quarter of the town. Mrs. Hayes was an experienced settlement worker, and knew many of the persons whom they passed. They for their part knew her and respected her for the kindly charity she dispensed so unostentatiously. As for Gloria, she could fear nothing since she was almost in total ignorance of what dangers might beset their path. Then, too, she was busy with her own thoughts.

Mrs. Hayes had been told in what room the sick woman lay, and without a word to anyone, in fact they saw no one, they went in the door on the side street and climbed the dark, uncarpeted stairs to the third floor. At a door just at the foot of the flight of stairs which led to the fourth story, Mrs. Hayes knocked gently. There was no answer. She decided that if there was no response to the next knock she would open the door to see if the girl were asleep. A second and louder knock, however, aroused her and she called to them to enter.

Gloria and Mrs. Hayes walked into the room, and as the latter went to the bedside to explain how they happened to call, the daughter of David Kerr stood stock still and gazed about her with undisguised curiosity.

The occupant of the room, a frail little creature with uncertain, golden hair, was known to her companions as Little Ella. Upon the blotter at the police station she was always booked as Luella Windermere. She had found the name in a novel, and, liking it, had taken it for her own. In the unkindly daylight, without the paint that mocked the cheek that once had bloomed a healthier hue, the pallor of her face was heightened by the dark circles under her eyes. Yet the ravages of a life too harsh for one so weak had not been so great as to blot entirely from her face all traces of a slumbering sweetness.

If Little Ella's room could be summed up in one word, that word would be—sham. It was not a poverty that honestly confessed itself to be such, that room. Instead it was a poverty that slunk away into corners and hid behind the rankest imitations of better things. Everything seemed to have been purchased at the cheapest booths at Vanity Fair. There were few things of substance, but many things of vain and empty show. Had Gloria been more skilled in reading the world aright, every bauble, every useless ornament would have preached a sermon. As it was, there was for her in large part only the interest of novelty.

To the right of Gloria were two windows looking out over the roofs of neighboring houses. Between them was a scarred maple dresser. It was littered among other things with postcard photographs, business cards, a calendar with a picture in many colors and a bottle of Florida water. Directly in front of her was the sick girl's bed, a cheap iron affair with massive tarnished brass trimmings. Beyond it was a frail-looking trunk painted in imitation of leather. The only things which boldly confessed themselves to be just as represented were two wooden kitchen chairs.

Looking close beside her, Gloria saw a battered maple washstand and beyond it a door which led into a closet under the stairs. She glanced curiously at the walls, which boasted some cheap prints, most of them showing in the advertising matter upon them from which whiskey house they had emanated. Some of the girl's waists and skirts hung upon nails, but the clothes which she had taken off the night before on retiring were upon a chair beside her trunk.

"I heard you were sick," Mrs. Hayes said sympathetically, "and I want to know if I can do anything to help you."

Little Ella viewed them with cold antagonism. They were not of her world and she both feared and hated them.

"Now," she growled. Then against her real wishes something out of her old life made her add grudgingly, "Much obliged."

Mrs. Hayes had worked too long among such people not to understand, and she ignored the girl's unfriendly manner by asking: "How do you feel today?"

"Rotten."

"No wonder! It's so close in here. I think it would be better for you if you'd let me open a window. It's mild out. May I?"

"Go as far as you like; I don't feel like fighting."

A nod from Mrs. Hayes sent Gloria to open a window.

"There now," exclaimed the younger visitor, "you'll feel better."

"Gloria," Mrs. Hayes asked, so the sick woman could not hear, "do you mind staying with her while I go to the mission for a few minutes? I want Mrs. Wallace to come over if she can; and the doctor, too, as soon as I can find him."

"Certainly, I'll stay," was the prompt response. "What's the matter with her?"

"I can't say until I see the doctor, because I'm not sure. I want Doctor Hayes to see her. If I can't get him I'll get Doctor Norton. You're not afraid to stay?"

Gloria smiled. What was there to fear? The girl surely could not become so ill in the short space of time Mrs. Hayes should be away as to render her inexperienced nurse absolutely helpless.

"Of course I'm not afraid," she replied. Then impulsively, "Besides, I want to do some good in the world. I've been too selfish."

"No, dear, not that," her companion gently remonstrated. "Thoughtless, perhaps, because you didn't know, but not selfish." Then she turned to Little Ella and said in the same quiet tone: "I think you'd be happier where there'd be some one to take care of you."

"I'm not sick, I'm just tired."

The ignorant fear sickness and disguise it as long as they can, shirking the fight and thereby making it all the harder. Understanding this, Mrs. Hayes answered lightly:

"If that's the case, I hope you'll entertain my friend for me until I return. She's interested in the work at the mission."

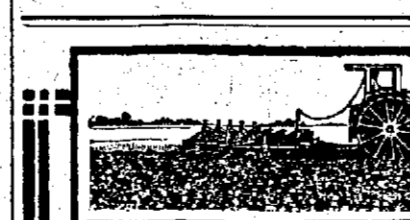

"You're on," Little Ella replied with an air of resignation as Mrs. Hayes left the room. She rolled over on her side and closed her eyes. Already she began to feel bored.

Although Gloria had professed that she had no fear about being left with the sick woman, when she said it she had in mind only a fear of being alone in such a dismal lodging house and fear that she might be called upon to act as doctor and trained nurse both were her patient to take a turn for the worse. Now, however, a new thought came to her. How was she to act?

What was she to do to amuse her? She felt instinctively the antipathy she had aroused. She covered like a lamb before this young she-wolf of the city. She was alone, defenseless, with this creature that had so far reverted to type that she might read and fear. Even in a battle of wits, and that was all there would be if the girl did not ignore her entirely, Gloria felt herself no match for this brazen child of misfortune. Her comparisons were physical, but it was not a physical fear she felt. Sheltered inexperience was pitted against the most cruel experience society could ever devise or contrive.

DINNER STORIES

Senator Bailey of Texas, the day of his farewell address, was asked by a correspondent to criticize two committees. He refused, however, to do so.

"I decline," he said, "for the same reason that led a cousin of mine to decline to argue about theology."

"I cannot discuss heaven or hell,"

Headache?—It's Your Liver.

Too Many People Take Headache Powders When a Liver Tonic is Needed.

Try Olive Tablets—the Substitute for Calomel.

Anyone who takes Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets the moment he suspects his liver or bowels, will never have headache.

There is no necessity, when you take Olive Tablets, of following them up with nasty, sickening, griping salts or castor oil, as you should after taking calomel.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel or any other metallic drugs; they are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, sugar-coated, easy to take, and never gripe or cause weakness.

Thousands of people take one every night at bedtime just to prevent disorder of the liver, constipation, bad breath, pimples, headache, etc.

Dr. Edwards, calomel's old enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with liver and bowel troubles.

Try them for a week. Take one on retiring nightly.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own." 10c and 25c per box.

The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

my cousin said. "I have friends in both places."

A solicitor who is noted for his egotistical bearing recently retired to a quiet village for a month's rest, and his air of superiority attracted the curiosity of the "daff" resident of the place, who made up his mind to investigate the matter without delay.

One morning he coolly button-holed the proud man of parchment and, without further parley, boldly asked him why he was so "stuck up." The solicitor smiled.

"Well," said he, "I am a member of a most honorable profession, and that naturally makes one feel a little proud."

This explanation did not satisfy "Daff William."

"It's all very well what you say," said he after a brief reflection; "but tell me what a lawyer can do."

"Oh, replied the other, anxious to humor his interrogator, "for one thing he can draw a conveyance."

"Draw a conveyance?" exclaimed "Daff William." "Why that's nothing. Any donkey can do that!"

The lawyer moved on.
